

ANNOUNCER: You've tuned in to another edition of The Break Room, a weekly conversation about how the City of St Augustine works from those who do the work everyday. Hosted by the City of St Augustine's Communications Director, Melissa

Wissel. The Break Room offers a closer look at the different

City departments and provides updates on current and upcoming projects and events. And now your host, Melissa Wissel.

MELISSA: Hello and thanks for tuning in.
You're listening to The Break Room. I'm Melissa Wissel, Communications Director for the City of St Augustine. As we wrap up Black History Month, this gives us a chance to talk about some of the very rich history we have here in the Nation's Oldest City and more importantly, the people of that history. And who better to have a conversation with than City Clerk Darlene Galambos. She's a huge fan of our City's history.

She's often responsible for researching that history for projects and public records requests. Darlene, welcome back to The Break Room. DARLENE: Thanks for having me back. MELISSA: Glad to have you. We're usually here talking about boards and sort of, I won't say boring, because.. DARLENE: The business end of the city. MELISSA: The business end of the city. This is the fun part. So, I do want to talk about the Faces of the Places. It was a social media campaign that we ran on Facebook and Instagram, and we featured some of our Faces of the Places named throughout the City for Black History Month.

Let's start with Willie Galimore Center. DARLENE: Well it's definitely my favorite part of my job is the history and the research, you know because you stumble across all kinds of really cool information.

Willie Galimore. He was a resident of the City of St Augustine. He attended the St Augustine Excelsior High School, which is now the home of the Lincolntonville Museum and Cultural Center, And then he went on to attend the Florida A and M University. Just incredible football player. I think arguably one of our star athletes from the City.

He was running back from for Chicago Bears from 1957 to 1963.

He was inducted in 1999 into the College Football Hall of Fame. He did at one point before his passing come back to St Augustine to participate in Civil Rights

Movement. And he actually was the first black guest to check in at the then all white

Ponce De Leon Motor Lodge.

Which is pretty. MELISSA: A lot of and a lot of our our folks from our Black History Month really were very pivotal in St Augustine during Civil Rights. DARLENE: Incredibly pivotal. Pivotal. Pivotal. MELISSA: The, so the Galimore Center. Let's tell folks where the Galimore Center is. It's down at the end, or towards the end of Riberia Point. If you've never been there, it is a it's a community center now. DARELENE: Yes and you can rent it for any sort of like dance classes or exercise classes or event, church services. There's anything you you wanted is available for rent. You know, a quite popular place to to hold private events. MELISSA: And there's a swimming pool. DARLENE: There is a swimming pool. Which won't be too much longer and it'll be open back up. MELISSA: That's right. DARLENE: And it was renovated, I guess a few years ago, the pool. But we're going to be renovating the Galimore Center facility and the grounds itself in in the coming years. So, definitely looking forward to that. MELISSA: Some great improvements down there.

Yes. So right next to the Galimore as we just started to kind of hint at is Eddie Vickers Park. That's another one that's going to see a big renovation through our CRA and our LCRA. But tell me a little bit about Eddie Vickers. DARLENE: So it was originally called Little Links. I know quite a few of my friends who played Little League down there. and so Eddie Vickers was initially employed by the city as a key member of our Parks and Recreation.

Whenever we combined with the County. He worked through the County, coached many, many, many kids here and is definitely deserving of the honor of having that that sports complex named after him. MELISSA: Nice. And there's basketball, baseball, playground area. And I know, it's in need of a facelift. But as we said, Jaime Perkins, our CRA Manager. She's working with some program funding and stuff down there, so we should see it...

DARLENE: If you're a pickleball fan, we're going to be installing pickleball courts there, as well, already. Renovate, so...

MELISSA: Excellent. So, Eddie Vickers

Park and the Willie Galimore are down at the end of Riberia Point on your way down. DARLENE: And because of his service to the City and the community. He was honored with the deAviles Award. One of our top awards in 1988. MELISSA: So a lot of history. Yes. Let's move on to Robert B Hayling Park.

They're all kind of down in that end of town. DARLENE: Yes. MELISSA: That's a beautiful point down there.

It's gorgeous. DARLENE: It's got a walking park. The Chimes project is down there. It's just a really wonderful place to get outside and enjoy some sunshine, get much needed vitamin D. MELISSA: So, I'll give a shout out. My son actually did his eagle project. DARLENE: Oh very nice. MELISSA: Putting out picnic tables and planting some of the plants that are down there along the, the what you would consider rip wrap, I guess. DARLENE: Yeah I couldn't imagine a better use for a property like that. MELISSA: So, tell me about Robert B Hayling. He's, he's a name of legend in and of himself. DARLENE: Yes, absolutely. He was definitely a key player in the Civil Rights Movement. He was Air Force veteran, a dentist by trade. His dental office is a part of the Accord Civil Rights tour, and he was an NAACP adviser for the youth council, worked with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference with Dr Martin Luther King. He was definitely, he definitely experienced pretty hard. MELISSA: He suffered a bit. Quite a bit. DARLENE: Yes. During the Civil Rights. And he is the only person to receive both of our top awards. Both the La

Florida and the deAviles

Award. MELISSA: That, I've and I honestly, until we were researching this,

I never knew that either. DARLENE: Oh yes. It was in, I know he received the La Florida in 2014. The 50 years of the signing of the Civil Rights. Yes. MELISSA: So, if you're on that end of town. Robert B Hayling Park is the beautiful ending there on Riberia. You can see the Intercoastal or not the intercoastal, the yeah the Matanzas Rivers down there.

You've got the Oyster Creek comes up, and beautiful sunsets.

You can walk along the walking path. And the chimes are down there. That was actually erected by Compassionate St Augustine. DARLENE: Yes. A wonderful project. That beautiful project. MELISSA: If you're just now tuning in, you are listening to The Break Room. I'm Melissa

Wissel, Communications
Director for the City of St

Augustine with Darlene Galambos.
She is the City Clerk and we are talking about the Faces of the Places. When you go around the city and you see places named after certain people, these folks were named. They were leaders during, a lot of them during the Civil Rights.

And it is the culmination of our Black History Month. Let's talk about down in the plaza,

Andrew Young Crossing. I think people walk through there and they see those bronze footprints on the sidewalk and unless you read the sign, you wouldn't necessarily know what that's all about. DARLENE: I feel like this is one of our more significant pieces in our City, just because of what it represents. And you know, having been a part of the development of this this project, it's just really beautiful and moving. So, Dr Young was a senior lieutenant to Dr

Martin Luther King. He was sent to St Augustine in 1964 to organize peaceful protest.

He led a march from Lincolntonville to the plaza where a group of demonstrators disrupted that protest. And he was approached by a large mob and he was struck several times to the point where he lost consciousness. And staying true, he stayed nonviolent. And I think historians agree that this was one of the pivotal events that led to the passage of the Civil Rights Legislation. He would go on to become America's first African American United Nations

Ambassador. He's a two-term mayor of Atlanta. He was the first black congressman since the reconstruction from the South. He's a recipient of the US Presidential Medal of Freedom. And

the co-chair of the Atlanta Olympic Games. MELISSA: Went on to quite a lot of accomplishments. DARLENE: Absolutely and I've.. MELISSA: That's perseverance. DARLENE: One of the most honorable, you know, memories I have is I got to be there whenever we dedicated the crossing to him. MELISSA: Oh that's cool. DARLENE: And so to meet him was.

MELISSA: Oh absolutely. DARLENE: Amazing. MELISSA: Yeah.
The, so, if you're down in the plaza, that's what those bronze footprints are in the southwest corner. If you're coming across from government house. And there are some information panels there that talks about what happened and tells you about Andrew Young. So, one last one last one before we wrap up for our Black History Month wrap up. We'll go back over to Lincolnville, a little bit over to Twine Park. It's a little pocket park. DARLENE: Yes. MELISSA: And we just we just planted a tree there.

DARLENE: We did. MELISSA: It's a pretty little park. DARLENE: Beautiful park. I love the pocket parks in the City.

Well, this one is definitely special because it's dedicated to pretty amazing man, too. Henry Twine served in World War II and when he returned from the war, he worked for the St Augustine Record. During the Civil Rights Movement, he chaired the first meeting that Dr King spoke at in St Augustine. He also served as a City Commissioner and he was the first Black Vice Mayor of the City. His greatest accomplishments arguably as Vice Mayor were to construct and name the Galimore Center, as well as the acquisition of what is now the Fort Mose property.

He served as president of the NAACP and after the passage of the Civil Rights Act, he was responsible for visiting local establishments to test whether or not the new

Civil Rights Laws would be observed. MELISSA: Interesting. DARLENE: Very brave man. MELISSA: Absolutely. And we what, we, you mentioned the Lincolnville Museum. And you, we talked about our history. The the service counter from Woolworths is now in the Lincolnville Museum. We do have an upcoming proclamation that we're going to read in honor of Black History Month that recognizes the bravery of what we call the St Augustine four.

And so that's that's coming up, and I'm really excited about that. There's one of them still living, and she will attend and accept the proclamation.

MELISSA: Wonderful. Yeah. And you say she, so I'm going to make a note here if, if listeners are paying attention. We've been talking about a of men in Black History Month. But we have Women's History coming up in March.

DARLENE: Yes. So. So I'm going to save Women's History for next month.

MELISSA: Okay and I know you love coming on The Break Room. DARLENE: Oh yes.

Absolutely. MELISSA: But we're doing great. It's a great conversation. So, what's really interesting though, all of these as we said before. Their relationships during civil rights, and I believe in some of our research, a lot of the one another. DARLENE: Oh yeah. Absolutely.

MELISSA: So they work together. DARLENE: So we don't have something. We don't have something. So major as a Civil Rights Movement without everybody coming together for one purpose and and that's freedom.

And so you know, these these people are true heroes.

MELISSA: True Americans. And to know that they all, I guess you could say survived, but then went on to such great success in their individual lives. Got married, had families, came back, made such a difference and an impact on ourselves. DARLENE: And continue to make a difference. MELISSA: Right. You know.

We've we have, I don't, I think I really was excited about the way we came up with our Black History Month theme this year of the Faces of the Places.

So, I look forward to continuing that. We're going to try it again next month, Faces of the Places. Because we have places around town that are named after women. DARLENE: Yes. MELISSA: And so we'll we'll get a shout out to our Women's History Month next.

DARLENE: It's kind of nice to kind of put an actual face in human being. MELISSA: Literally. DARLENE: With the, why is it Twine Park. Who

Twine. MELISSA: And Twine and who are we talking about? Twine and Mr Vickers had very influential wives. So we'll be back to talk about their better halves. DARLENE: Absolutely. And they have birthdays coming up this year, too. Really soon. MELISSA: And I'm going to have you come back.

DARLENE: Okay. MELISSA: And you can help us recap our Women's History Month.

DARLENE: Absolutely. MELISSA: Alright. Well, thank you for coming. We're out of time. We ran through all of that. Check out our cool places throughout the City.

Willie Galimore Center, Eddie Vickers Park, Robert B Hayling

Park, Twine Park, and Andrew

Young Crossing. DARLEN: And you can learn about many more at the Lincolnville Museum and Cultural Center. MELISSA: Absolutely.

Great shout out to them. They have a fantastic facility. DARLENE: Yes, they do. It's really cool. MELISSA: If you missed part of this
